FUNERAL SERVICE FOR ELDON GARNER

Raymond was saddened Saturday morning to hear of the death of Eldon Garner, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Garner of Raymond.

Eldon, accompanied by his younger brother Vernon, was driving to Calgary in his truck when a few miles north of Macleod the truck collided with a freight train at the crossing on No 2 highway. Fog and icy conditions of the road were responsible for the accident. Both boys were taken to the hospital in Macleod where Eldon died a few hours after admittance, never regaining consciousness. Vernon arrived home from the hospital Monday and was in attendance at the funeral of his brother.

Eldon was one of Raymond's most promising and respected young men. He was born in Cardston in 1918 and after living some time there and in Medicine Hat, moved with his family to Raymond where they have been one of the popular families of the community.

Eldon served two years as a missionary for the L.D.S. Church in Illinois and Missouri, returning home and joining the services. He spent some time overseas, mostly in Holland. After his return to Canada and civilian life, he again served a missionary, this time laboring in Edmonton on a short term mission. Since his return he has been in the trucking business here with his father and has been very active in Church work.

Funeral services were held Tuesday in the Second Ward Chapel, with Bishop L.L. Palmer in charge.

Anderson and the closing prayer was offered by Clarence E. Allied. The grave site was dedicated by Ralph Garner. Interment was in the local cemetery. Christensen Bros were in charge of funeral arrangements.

Over sixty relatives attended from out of town, coming from Cardston, Glenwood, H. Spring, Warner, Taber and Edmonton, and the church was filled to overflowing with friends. Members of the Seventies Quorum sat in a body as did M Men and Gleaner Girls and Great War Veterans.

Raymond Larke, President of the Canadian Legion in Raymond was in attendance and the coffin was draped with the Union Jack. Floral tributes were profuse and beautiful and bespoke the love and respect held for this fine young man and his family.

The family were all present at the funeral, his sister Adrienne coming from Calgary and Thora, (Mrs. Claude Adamson) coming from Rosemary.

Left to mourn his passing are his parents Mr. and Mrs. Garner, brother Vernon and four sisters, Rena, (Mrs. Bruce Heggie) Thora, Adrienne and Gladys.

THE Sport Spot

Saturday and Monday saw the Jacks and Lions playing the 3rd and fourth games in Magrath and Raymond of the Southern Alberta Basketball playdowns. A 5th game will be unnecessary as the Jacks made it three in a row by two more very decisive victories. Saturday night in Magrath a packed house saw these two teams play to a final score of 55-47 in a clean fast game that saw only Turner for Raymond and D. Sabey for Magrath turned off the floor for fouls. The Jacks fouled 17 times altogether and the Lions 19. High point man for the night was Glen Michelson with 26 points while trailing him closely was D. Sabey with 21.

Monday night in the Raymond Opera House the Lions made a desperate attempt that gave Raymond fans a real thrill. In the first three minutes the Lions ran the score up to 7-0 while the crowd gaped. Then the Jacks turned on the heat and made a quick ten points and from then on the issue was never in doubt. Murdoch Nalder and Michelson went to the bench early from the Jacks lineup, while M. Sabey, D. Sabey, Harker, Rice and Wheeler fouled off leaving the Lions with only three men on the floor for the last few seconds of play.

Man Who Invented Toast Not Known

The origins of toast are lost in the mists of antiquity. Some inspired philosopher ought to do for toast what Charles Lamb did for roast pig: give us, that is, at least a plausible theory of how it came to be. Most probably the actual inventor will never be known, and it is best so, for monuments would be erected to him at every crossroads, adding intolerably to our traffic problems. Toast is the sine qua non of every American breakfast—not even coffee would be less readily dispensed with. Every matrifamilias knows that the quickest way to get the men-folk out of bed in the morning is not to jangle a bell but to open the kitchen door, a chunk and let the fumes of toast like incense pervade the house.—New York Sun.

BIG LEAGUE BALL PLAYERS TO EARN LARGE SUMS OF MONEY THIS YEAR

NEW YORK.—Bobby Feller, the golden boy of baseball's second golden era—even as Babe Ruth was the salaried colossus of the first—leads a total of 26 big league players who will earn from $20,000 to $80,000 plus in 1947, survey shows.

When brilliant Bobby signed a Cleveland contract which will bring him from $80,000 to $100,000 for his work on the hill this year, he became the first player with a chance to better the 80 grand a year New York Yankees paid the Babe back in '30 and '31.

Although the matter of payment is incidental, it should be pointed out that the home run king got his dough in straight salary while Bob is to be paid part of his in bonuses based on home attendance. Approximately $55,000 of his money will be in straight salary.

Although Hank Greenberg's salary has never been disclosed by Pittsburgh officials, it has been learned from an authoritative source that it calls for a flat $75,000 contract with no bonus arrangements, as previously reported. Others who will receive more than $50,000 in 1947 include Ted Williams, who will be paid $65,000 by Boston Red Sox, and Hal Newhouse, who will draw $60,000 from Detroit Tigers.

Honors for being the highest salaried club go to the American League champion Boston Red Sox, who, according to General Manager Eddie Collins, will shell out close to a half million dollars this year. Besides Williams, Dave Ferriss, Tex Hughson, Rudy York, Bobby Doerr, Dom DiMaggio and Johnny Pesky are reported to be in the $20,000 class.

The diagnosis of pernicious anaemia depends on the condition of the blood and the character of the stomach secretion. In all cases there is a lowering of the hydrochloric acid to a marked degree. Nervous symptoms and sore tongue aid in confirming the diagnosis, as do the evidences of changes in the spinal cord.

The Newest Way To Grow Grass

The Boston Post says: The appearance at the housewives show here of a device to grow grass with almost no effort will undoubtedly interest many a home owner. The device consists of strips of papers containing seed and fertilizer imbedded within the strips. These strips are stretched on the ground, covered with a little soil and soaked with water. The paper dissolves into the earth taking the seed and fertilizer with it and, it is claimed, grass appears in four or five days. A method of easy grass growing has been sought for centuries. If this one works, then the gardener's millennium is at hand.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

MR. PRECISION

By DOUGLAS R. WESTON

ONCE Sam Perwell had loved his wife but now he regarded her with loathing. She had long since lost her ashy blond beauty and sylphlike figure; her white hair was always untidy and her patrician features had thickened and coarsened. Once she had had a waist he could almost encircle with one arm; today she tipped the scales at well over two hundred pounds and looked like a flour sack tied in the middle.

On the other hand, Sam, although edging toward sixty, looked no more than forty-five and, what was more to the point, still felt young. His capacity for enjoying life was still large and if Mathilda couldn't enjoy it with him there were others who could. Particularly Veronica. Unfortunately Mathilda controlled the purse strings, a fact which Sam now decided to correct.

It was all very simple. The best murders are. In fact, the simplicity of it all rather astonished Sam and later, as he sat in his office reviewing the morning's work, he pondered that he hadn't gone about disposing of Mathilda years ago.

As usual he left the apartment at eight o'clock, calling goodbye to Mathilda, who still sat at the breakfast table, reading the morning paper. She reminded him, in the hearing of Hilton who lived across the hall, that they were going to her brother's that evening for bridge.

The two men chatted inconsequentially as they walked down the stairs and up the street. Hilton, who sold insurance, mentioned the epidemic of burglaries in the district of late and Sam agreed that something should be done about it. At the corner, Hilton dashed across the street to catch an approaching streetcar and Sam turned east, nodding to Joe How, the landladyman, who was talking to the corner grocer.

At the next corner Sam turned down the street and slipped along the alley to the apartment service entrance and cautiously made his way up the stairs. He let himself softly into the kitchen. Through the doorway he could see Mathilda in the dining room fumbling through her purse. She never heard her husband sneak up on her nor knew anything more after he struck her with a length of lead pipe. She crumpled to the floor in a sprawling heap with a little surprised grunt. Sam waited long enough to ascertain she was dead and to extract her wallet from her purse.

He had to take a taxi to get to the office for his usual time of eight-thirty, taking the precaution to get out a block or so from the office. Milly Dell, the switchboard operator, was talking to the office manager who looked at his watch as Sam entered.

"I can set my watch by you," grinned the manager. "Precisely eight-thirty." Sam smiled, shaking the rain from his hat. His insistence on doing everything precisely on the dot was something of a joke around the office.

"Did you walk over?" asked Milly. Sam nodded. "Every day, rain or shine, winter and summer." "It must be murderous in subzero weather," commented Milly. Sam said one became accustomed to such inconveniences, but privately he wished Milly had used some other adjective.

In his office he relaxed. The janitor would find Mathilda when he went up to repair the leaky faucet in the bathroom which he, Perwell, had expressly called him about the previous night. He would call the police and the police—Sam chuckled. He had no fear of the police. Everything was perfect.

The police came seeking Perwell just as he was preparing to go out for lunch. There were two of them, tall, husky young men with pleasant features. One introduced himself as Johnny Beauchamp of the Homicide squad and the other was Evan Dhu Carter, whose name was vaguely familiar but whom Sam couldn't place.

"Homicide squad?" echoed Sam. "Yes," Beauchamp nodded, his face grave. "Someone entered your apartment this morning and assaulted your wife."

Sam gripped the desk and swayed, hoping the distress on his face was convincing. "How—how is she?" he faltered.

"Dead," said Carter bluntly. It was

AULD ACQUAINTANCE NOT FORGOTTEN—A Labrador retriever dog, Gyn, arrived in Toronto, Ont., from Aberdeen, Scotland, to live with her 20-year-old war bride owner, Mrs. Eileen Bodrug, and meet the Bodrug son, Ronald, five months old. Mrs. Bodrug, seen here with Ronald and Gyn, came to Toronto from Scotland with her husband, formerly in the R.C.A.F.

as they were on their way to the apartment in the police car that Sam realized that Evan Dhu Carter was not with them. "He isn't officially connected with us," explained Beauchamp, "although he has worked with us several times. He just happened to be in my office when the call came through."

The police were courteous and efficient. Their efficiency almost panicked Sam. Mathilda was lying on the studio couch, covered with a plaid blanket. Other policemen stood watchfully around. Beauchamp wanted to know if anything was missing and Sam looked through her purse and in bureau drawers.

"Her wallet's missing," he reported. "I don't know how much money she had."

They wanted to know what time he had left and he told them, remembering that Hilton across the hall could corroborate his statement. They asked him if he had any ideas and he pointed out bitterly that the district of late had had a number of burglaries; only the preceding week a neighbor who had been walking home late had been pulled into an alley and the rings pulled forcibly from her fingers. Beauchamp nodded and muttered that the force was still understaffed.

After they were through questioning he packed a small bag and went to his brother's to stay for a few days. The police were such simpletons!

Mathilda was buried and the police had apparently dropped the case, after a coroner's jury had returned a verdict of death at the hands of person or persons unknown. Sam disposed of the furniture, sublet the apartment and moved into his brother's. Everybody was so sympathetic.

Then, one evening, Beauchamp and Evan Dhu Carter called. Sam was in the living room reading and he looked up in surprise as they entered. Beauchamp leaned against the hookcase while Carter slumped into a chair facing Sam. Sam felt uneasy. Beauchamp was regarding him thoughtfully and Carter had the satisfied expression of a cat who has caught a mouse.

"Mr. Perwell," said Beauchamp slowly, "what time did you say you left the apartment the day your wife was murdered?"

"Eight o'clock," replied Sam promptly. "I always left at eight o'clock."

"Yeah," drawled Carter, "and you got to the office at precisely eight-thirty. You're a very precise man, Mr. Perwell."

"Being precise is no crime, I hope!" he snapped. "No," agreed the detective. "But murder is."

Perwell gaped. "Murder?" he stuttered. "Yeah. We did a little investigating. Around your office they call you Mr. Precision. They say you do everything precisely on the dot. You get in at precisely eight-thirty. At precisely ten you go downstairs for coffee. At precisely twelve-fifteen you go for lunch, returning at exactly one-thirty. At precisely five-fifteen you go home for the day."

Carter continued. "You slipped back in the house via the service entrance, slugged your wife and took her wallet for a motive. But you didn't go out the way you came in. You forgot yourself and walked out the front door. Several people, including a laundryman and a grocer, saw you pass at your usual time, then to their amazement you passed the second time. But none could recall seeing you return to your apartment."

Meekly Sam held out his wrists as Beauchamp produced handcuffs.

"It was too simple," said Carter. "You were so accustomed to traveling precisely the same way every morning that after killing your wife you forgot you had already walked out the front way once, and promptly walked out the second time."

"And that," said Beauchamp with grim humor, "is precisely where we come in."

SAUNDERS WHEAT
NEW VARIETY

WINNIPEG. — A new wheat variety known as Saunders, described as highly resistant to stem rust, loose smut and bunt or covered smut, has been recommended for licensing by the joint agricultural committee of the National Research Council.

The committee, in session here, said the variety had been developed by J. G. C. Carl Fraser of Ottawa and was a cross between Thatcher and 447, the latter a Brandon, Man., developed strain from the discarded Hope and Reward varieties.

Saunders wheat was said to be the equal of Thatcher in yield and superior to Red Bohs, grown in the Peace River, Northern Alberta and Northwestern Saskatchewan fields. It was two or three days earlier in ripening than either of the other two varieties and was also said to be equal to the best wheat in baking qualities.

GARDEN NOTES

Not Too Formal

An informal layout of flower gardens, lawn and shrubbery about the home almost always gives the best results. Straight rows, straight paths and everything just so is a matter for professionals and large estates. With the average lot in town or country there are too many straight lines, in any case, like driveways, foundation walls and fences. The main idea in gardening is to break these and soften them. To do this, shrubbery is planted in irregular clumps around, but not too close to, the house, with highest groupings at the corners and around the front porch. Variety may be added by the odd climbing vine.

Will They Grow In Canada?

Many beautiful flowers and shrubs that will grow well in the Southern States or in the mild climate of England will not do well in Canada. One wastes money, time and work in trying them here. Our climate, soil and other conditions are not suitable, just as their conditions do not suit certain things that thrive abundantly here. To guard against the discouraging efforts to produce these tender plants here one is advised to stick to those flowers, shrubs and vegetables that are especially recommended for Canadian conditions. The latter are the varieties and types listed in the Canadian seed catalogues. These have all been tested under Canadian conditions and they are the only ones recommended by the Canadian authorities.

Grow 'em Fast!
Any vegetable taken right out of the garden at the door will be tastier than those out of can or storehouse but, as any experienced gardener knows, there is a vast difference between those properly grown and the other kind. The real secret of tender vegetables is quick, unchecked growth. To get this means planting at the proper time, not too early with tender things that frost or cold weather may check, and then they must be harvested when just right. Old gardeners push growth along quickly with plenty of cultivation, fertilizer, and water when necessary, and if possible. They also spread sowings out over at least several weeks so that young stuff is coming along continuously. Another trick they use is to plant several different types, an early-maturing sort, a medium and a late. In the seed catalogue usually will be listed the number of days to maturity. Thus we can purchase, say, peas that will be ready for the table in fifty days, some in sixty and some in seventy.

By using some of all three there will be a succession of good crops instead of a regular feast followed by a famine. Most experienced gardeners continue making sowings of carrots, beets, beans, lettuce and spinach from the time the ground is first ready up to mid-July.

German Crooner
Unable To Get Audience

BERLIN. — Wilhelm Strienz, German crooner who popularized the Nazi song, "Churchill, You Old Lord of Lies," has nowhere to sing.

Although Allied authorities gave him permission to sing again he finds few sponsors who dare provide him an audience.

But this 38-year-old singer, whose intimate vocal rendering of "A Playful Little German Soldier's Wife" and other German songs caused franks and frauleins to scream ecstatically, insists he only sang the Churchill song once.

In 1941 Goebbels classified the Churchill song as "undesirable because it tends to make the enemy popular with the German people."

Gave Idea For Telephone Booth

An unidentified Boston landlady who complained about the "yelling" of telephone inventor Alexander Graham Bell opened the way to the first telephone booth.

At a luncheon commemorating the 100th anniversary of Bell's birth, Gordon S. Wallace recounted the incident as he heard it years ago from Bell's assistant, Thomas A. Watson.

"He told me that the landlady of a rooming house where Bell was experimenting threatened to dispossess both of them if they didn't 'stop that yelling'."

"So, in hopes of deadening the sound, Watson stripped his room of bedclothes, draperies and rugs and wrapped himself in them."

"And that's how the telephone booth was born."

"Desire to Serve-plus Ability."

MY WEEK

by R. J. Deachman

I had a letter the other day from a woman in the United States, relative of mine, a resident of Chicago. She is of southern birth with the low soft Southern drawl that sounds so charming to northern ears. Why should people in the Southern States have a tone which differs so much from the people of the New England States or of Seattle? Is it the climate? Is it the negro influence? Even in a small country like the United Kingdom, Scotland, Lancashire and London maintain their own dialects despite constant intermingling. Why do they not smooth out in a period of time to one common tone, I know one answer. If I lived in Ayrshire, Scotland, I would talk the language of Burns, for no other reason than because my mother came from there.

My friend tells me there is much illness in Chicago. "Flu" in its varying forms has made its appearance. Food and other products are abundant but dear. Prices there are higher than here. Where there is price control we do without. Where they are free from price control there is abundance but at higher prices. Still prices like dialects do not flatten out to one level, there are wide price variations within the nation, competition is always the answer to high prices.

My friend mentioned in all this, a common aftermath of war. People cannot live in countries at war or even live in countries at peace, during war, without feeling the tremendous tragedy of war. To some there comes the idea that human life is cheap. If they can't get what they want by ordinary means they resort to force. This will change as we forget the war, if we ever can forget it, and move back to quiet days of peace.

In Chicago, as here, housing is a problem. Many are being built but demand is greater than supply. The effort to find a new place of residence is so great that most people are content to wait until conditions change. This too will pass, housing will not always be a problem.

Her comment on business conditions is rather interesting: "If the labor problem can ever be satisfactorily settled then things here would move ahead." Alas, the labor problem will not be settled until labor realizes that increased production and not increased wage rates is the true basis of a higher standard of living.

"Truman", she remarks, "isn't very popular but everyone realizes that he has his hands full. I never did envy the man who had to step into Roosevelt's shoes." If Roosevelt were living now would he find his task an easy one. Would Congress deal as leniently with him as it does with Truman. I doubt it. Roosevelt was popular in the United States but there was, in spots, intense feeling against him. Sometimes a great man passes from the scene at the proper time, that is if he is to retain his greatness in the eyes of the people. Think what would happen to Churchill in England. There was a man who could get the cheers of the nation but on election day, Alce got the votes. I am not sure which is preferable—but I think in Churchill's place I would have chosen the cheers

Preventable Illness

IN RECENT YEARS THERE HAS BEEN growing awareness on the part of the public of the importance of health, not only to the individual but to the welfare of the nation as a whole. Efforts have been made by the Dominion and provincial governments through their departments of public health to keep before the people the facts concerning the prevention of disease, nutrition and other matters pertaining to health, while social welfare agencies, insurance companies, the Red Cross Society and other organizations interested in the welfare of the community have also done a great deal towards raising health standards in this country. In spite of the efforts which are made to educate the people along these lines, however, authorities state that there is still much preventable illness which causes inconvenience to the individual and loss to the country through the effect which many interruptions in work have upon the output of our farms and factories.

High Cost To All Citizens

In this connection it is estimated that poor health costs Canadian workers in the neighborhood of $135,000,000 a year. Loss in production alone is some $200,000,000. These are large sums of money, enough to be a serious consideration to every citizen, and the fact that medical authorities are of the opinion that much of the illness which causes this loss is preventable, makes it an even more serious matter. A considerable percentage of the time lost from work because of illness, is due to accidents or to unhealthy working or living conditions. Naturally, the greatest number of accidents are in the larger centres of industry, but there are many too on the farms, when proper precautions are not taken in the handling of machines and other farm equipment.

West Leads In Many Matters

Safe working conditions, and high standards of hygiene and cleanliness both at work and in homes are essential to good health and a minimum of preventable illness. Canada is fortunate in having far-sighted leaders in the field of public health. A great deal has been done in each province by legislation in matters such as safe milk and water supplies, the control of communicable diseases, mental hygiene and numerous other matters. The Western provinces have been particularly alert in this field and have led other parts of Canada in many things including the treatment of tuberculosis and cancer. There is much knowledge, and there are many services at the disposal of the public and it is the duty of every citizen to avail himself of these services and to co-operate in every way in reducing the great national waste which is caused by preventable illness in Canada each year.

Robbed of Sleep by Rheumatic Pain

But No Pain Now—After a Few Weeks of Kruschen

A woman's gratitude at being rid of "such dreadful pains" caused her to write this letter:

"I used to have such dreadful pains in my knees, ankles and shoulders, to say nothing of my back, which used to feel as though it would break. I had no ease, especially at night, but since taking Kruschen Salts for a few weeks only, I feel a different woman, thank goodness. I have no pains now. I feel much brighter and better in every way, and shall certainly continue with Kruschen."—(Mrs.) M.H.

Most rheumatic pain and swelling is caused by too much uric acid in the body. These painful deposits settle in the muscles, joints and tendons, irritate the nerves, and inflame the tissues. Kruschen Salts acts on these pain-making deposits by helping your system to disperse them and to pass them out of your body. This relieves the pain and if you are wise, you will continue with the little morning dose of Kruschen as a help against further attacks. Try Kruschen for the relief of rheumatic pains and lumbago. 25c and 75c at your nearest drug store.

PREDICTS CANADA TO BE EMPIRE HUB

LONDON.—Fifty years hence Canada will be the strategic centre of the British Empire, C. R. Fay, formerly professor of the economics department at the University of Toronto, wrote in a letter from Cambridge, England, printed as a Sunday Times editorial.

Canada, he said, by reason of her immense resources of minerals and the power and quality of her people "will, with a much smaller population than the United States, nevertheless equal the United States in internal wealth and striking power."

Fay continued: "It follows that Canada cannot allow herself to be attached militarily or diplomatically to England. England, therefore, must gradually work to a position in which she is attached to Canada."

"Canada will not welcome the implications of this. She herself would like to continue as a middle power, intermediate and mediating, but ultimately her policy must conform to the realities of power, however unwelcome the accommodation may be."

Fay also referred to the "disastrous policy of placating Russia and the United States by surrendering the balance of our overseas Empire."

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"What made you decide to put off your wedding by two days?"
"Well, you see, I reckoned it out that my silver wedding would come on a Saturday, and I always play golf on Saturdays."

The landlady showed her new lodgers into their room, and hovered about anxiously while they looked around.

"Now I do want to be a good landlady," she exclaimed, "so if there's anything you want that I haven't got, do let me know, and I'll show you how to do without it."

The after-dinner speaker had talked for fifteen minutes.

"After partaking of such a meal," he continued, "I feel if I had eaten any more I would be unable to talk."

From the far end of the table came an order to a waiter: "Give him a sandwich."

"That pretty girl seems to be having a good time!"

"Yes, yes—her fiancé, a young medical officer in India, is coming home to marry her next month."

"Well, she certainly seems to have solved the problem of what to do till the doctor comes."

Minister: "I made seven hearts happy today!"

Parishioner: "How was that?"

Minister: "Married three couples."

Parishioner: "That only makes six hearts."

"Yes, sir."

"What's an armature?"

"A chap who hoxes for nothin'!"

"I can't understand why I didn't get that job," said Betty.

"Well, what did the manager ask you?" inquired her friend.

"He asked if my punctuation was good."

"And what did you say?"

"I said I'd never been late for work in my life."

Major: "Your reports should be written in such a manner that even the most ignorant can understand them."

Corporal: "And what is it, sir, that you don't understand?"

Customer: "But if you are selling these watches below cost, where does your profit come in?"

Dealer: "We make our profit repairing them."

Little Willie (seeing the vicar approaching, and remembering the text he had given her at Sunday school): "Oh, Mummy... Here's the gentleman who gave me that advertisement about Heaven."

"Happiness," said the philosopher, "is the pursuit of something, not the catching of it."

Mr. Citizen then asked: "Have you ever chased the last bus on a rainy night?"

FRENCH PLANE HAS HARROWING 400-MILE FLIGHT OVER ATLANTIC

—IMPORTANT CARGO JETTISONED

PARIS. — Eleven passengers and six crew members of an Air France plane landed safe in Casablanca recently after a harrowing 400-mile flight over the Atlantic Ocean in a crippled airliner.

The trouble developed after the four-engine Constellation left the Azores on the last leg of a New York-Paris flight. The plane flashed an SOS after fire burned out one right motor.

Trouble later developed in the second right motor, and the plane began to lose altitude. The cargo, including 40,000 copies of recently-signed satellite peace treaties printed in the United States, was jettisoned.

The plane began to rise again, and ventured away from the vicinity of two freighters which volunteered to stand by in case the craft went down in the Atlantic. When the plane arrived over the Casablanca airport, the undercarriage failed to work properly, and the ship circled several times before landing, according to information reaching the air line in Lisbon.

The actual landing, however, was described as "normal", and none aboard suffered any physical harm. Passengers were to be transferred to another plane for the flight to Paris.

The crew of the stricken plane radioed that one of the right motors caught fire and burned out completely. It said the other right motor then began to fail. Lisbon said the second motor stopped.

In Paris, however, a representative of Lockheed Aircraft, builders of the Constellation, said three motors were working when the plane landed at Casablanca, and that none was burned out.

Scotland's colorful story came to light in Venice when he testified at the war crimes trial of Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, former German commander in Italy.

But some inkling of his story came from his grey-haired, blue-eyed wife who told what she knew at her small cottage here.

Mrs. Scotland said that few people at Bournemouth ever suspected her husband's double life. They knew there was something "fishy" about the way he was called for and returned home in a military car and the way he disappeared without notice for months at a time. But that was all.

His wife, who saw almost nothing of her husband for four years, said she knew he often left the country, but was surprised when she learned he had become attached to the German Army.

"He knew Germany very well and went there a lot before the war," she said.

"I don't know, of course, how he worked there or what his methods were."

According to Josephus, Jerusalem once had a population of more than 1,000,000.

New Weather Stations To Be Established In Arctic Circle

OTTAWA—Canada will establish nine new weather stations in the Arctic Circle to improve her domestic and international weather forecasting services, Reconstruction Minister Howe announced in the commons.

The stations will be established within the next three years and will be operated for at least five years to enable a complete study of their value in forecasting weather.

While Canada will be responsible for establishing the stations and supplying the officers in charge, the United States, because of her direct interest in the results, had agreed to supply technical officers and assist in the establishment and operation of the weather outposts.

Mr. Howe observed that Russia, affected similarly to Canada by Arctic sources of weather, maintained a large number of weather stations "on the other side of the North Pole." Canada already exchanged a large amount of weather information with Russia and the new Canadian stations would benefit this interchange.

Most northerly station in the new chain will be located in the vicinity of Eureka Sound, on the northwestern side of Ellesmere Island, some 600 miles from the North Pole. The main station will be at Winter Harbor on Melville Island, at approximately 75 degrees north latitude, 110 west longitude. Location of other stations "was a matter for further study."

It is anticipated that the establishment of Arctic weather stations will provide our meteorologists with accurate information which will be of inestimable value to our national economy, and particularly to enterprises in many fields," Mr. Howe said. "From an economic point of view, long-range weather forecasting would result in savings far in excess of the monetary costs in establishing and maintaining these stations. Their establishment would also determine the feasibility of air routes across the polar regions."

Repair Costs Of Veteran Houses Paid By Ottawa

OTTAWA.—Veterans Minister MacKenzie, answering opposition charges of faulty construction in veterans' homes, said in the commons that the government will pay for "a 100 per cent. repair job" on 2,600 housing units built on small holdings under provisions of the Veterans' Land act.

Mr. MacKenzie, saying that the repair work would cost between $500,000 and $700,000, stated that many of the defects were due to "faulty workmanship" and the use of "faulty materials". All the conditions were "remediable and, with few exceptions, at a very small cost." It was hoped the work would be completed within a few months.

Speaking during continued throne speech debate, Mr. MacKenzie rejected a Progressive Conservative party suggestion that a royal commission be established to investigate the building of homes for veterans.

The only feature with which a royal commission could deal, in my judgment, would be the question of a cut in capital cost," said Mr. MacKenzie. "If we were to ask a royal commission to examine the physical condition of these houses it would simply be delaying their completion and delaying the furnishing of the amenities to which these settlers are entitled."

Besides the minister, speakers in the debate included Hazen Argue (C.C.F., Wood Mountain).

Mr. Argue sought to discuss the application now before the board of transport commissions for a 30 per cent. increase in railway freight rates, but Deputy Speaker Ross MacDonald ruled that the matter was "sub-judice".

In reply to opposition requests as to why the contractors should not be asked to pay the cost of repairs, Mr. MacKenzie said that the question was a legal one and still was being considered. It was definite that the cost would not fall back on the veterans.

The minister said he was dealing only with 2,600 houses on small holdings.

The veterans department now had in the field a committee that was investigating sample houses in small holdings' projects. This committee was recommending the repairs which should be made.

The houses had been built at a time when there was an "absolute housing emergency," at a time of great difficulty 2,600 houses had been provided on small holdings. The contracting firms used had been of the highest reputation and were all financially sound.

VON PAPAN SENTENCED—One-time ace diplomat of Germany, Franz von Papen, seen here under U.S. guard, has been sentenced to eight years in a labor camp and barred from public office for life by a German denazification court. Four months ago the 68-year-old Nazi was acquitted of major war criminal charges by the Nuremberg international tribunal.

ATOMIC WAR COULD DESTROY WORLD'S FOOD

TOKYO.—An atomic war could result in the destruction of the world's food supply, an agricultural expert at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters warned.

A "foodless world could result from plant sterility caused by the effects of atomic bomb explosions, W. M. Myers declared.

He reported recently that abnormalities have been discovered in plant life in the atomic explosion areas of Japan.

"Future generations of plants as well as current plant life can suffer from atomic war," he said.

Myers, from State college in Pennsylvania, is a research specialist of the agriculture division of Allied headquarters natural resources section.

"If a gigantic world-scale atomic war came along, there is danger that plant life would suffer from radioactive dust particles that would be thrown into the air," he said.

"Not only would existing crops be wiped out if radioactivity of the particles was sufficiently intense, but succeeding crops would be affected."

Help! Help!

VANCOUVER.—More than one city resident objects to visits from mothers-in-law!

One Vancouver man who desired immunity from such visits placed an advertisement in a local paper which said:

"Help! Help! Mother-in-law arriving. Unless I find her a place to live she will move in with us. Anything will do—apartment or house, large or small, furnished or unfurnished. It's a house for her or a dog-house for me."

Sympathetic readers flooded him with offers to take the burden off his hands.

A mother-in-law who saw the advertisement said wrathfully, "The ad should be banned from the newspapers. It's the most dastardly thing I ever heard of."

Stassen emphasized that he will travel as a private citizen and a leader of the Republican party. During his visit to Russia, Stassen said he hopes to obtain an interview with Generalissimo Stalin.

CANNOT USE SLIT TRENCH IN ARCTIC

CHURCHILL, Man.—With the possible exception of the slit trench, most of Canada's weapons of the Second Great War appear to have made efficient debuts under the impact of sub-zero conditions.

Although officials of the joint services winter experimental base say it is too early to report fully, their statements seem to indicate that such arms as the 25-pounder field gun, wireless sets, the Bren-gun and rifle are capable of northern operations with some minor technical alterations in some cases. None of them has fallen down completely in trials conducted by soldiers.

Certainly as far as the frozen tundra is concerned, however, the slit trench appears to be out. Sanctuary of many a Canadian soldier, its few feet of length and width would probably cost a lot of money up here.

American engineers have been using the shaped charge, which helped blow apart Normandy beach concrete defences, as well as other wartime explosives in efforts to blow holes in this soil. Their experience is that they can do it if they want to use enough explosives.

At a rough guess, it would probably cost at least $50 to blast out a slit trench comparable to the size of those which Canadians shovelled in the soil of Europe.

BUTTER SITUATION SAID IMPROVED

OTTAWA.—The butter situation is about twice as good as it was a year ago, the bureau of statistics reported.

The report showed stocks of creamery butter held in nine principal cities March 1 amounted to 11,255,650 pounds, compared with 5,569,156 a year ago. On Feb. 1 stocks were 17,444,172 pounds.

Cheese stocks March 1 were 12,907,308 pounds, compared with 14,880,432 Feb. 1 and 14,235,418 March 1, 1946.

Funds Provided To Facilitate Housing Needs

OTTAWA—Funds to facilitate housing—both emergency and normal—are provided in the estimates tabled in the commons.

The new federal expedient of moving houses from one locality to another to meet emergency conditions is forecast in the estimates for the reconstruction department, and an estimate of $700,000 for the purpose is provided.

No explanation of how the plan would work is given in the list of proposed disbursements. It was recalled, however, that some municipalities have embarked on the same scheme on a small scale within the last couple of years. As the municipalities employed it, surplus housing in one area was purchased, knocked down, transported to another place and there set up again.

How far the government planned to go with the proposal was not indicated. The estimates indicated, however, that the $700,000 covered only costs of transportation involved.

Another spur to housing, of the normal variety, appeared in the estimates in a $400,000 item to provide incentive bonuses to expedite production of strategic building materials.

It was the first time the size of the sum available for this purpose had been made known. However, Reconstruction Minister Howe recently said in the commons this type of bonus would be paid only as a last resort. So far, only one payment has been made.

Indication that the operations of Wartime Housing, Ltd., will be continued in 1947-48 at a substantial, though somewhat reduced, volume was given in the estimates. The wartime housing estimate for the coming fiscal year is $27,500,000, compared with $42,000,000 for the current year.

Also due for reduction is the home conversion plan, for which the present year's $500,000 estimate has been sliced in half.

Large Sums To Be Spent On West Projects

Farm Rehabilitation

OTTAWA.—An increase of $1,125,000 for special work such as prairie farm rehabilitation and irrigation and assistance to certain basic industries was the major jump in 1947-48 estimates for the Dominion department of agriculture tabled in the commons.

The department's estimates for 1947-48 totalled $23,202,947, an increase of $2,349,135 over the $20,853,811 voted for the 1946-47 fiscal year. The rest of the increase—$1,224,135—was spread through the various services of the department including a jump of $559,995 in the production service.

In addition $30,147,820 was provided for the agriculture department under the heading of demobilization and reconversion. It had to do with continuance of certain special boards and completion of the wartime functions of others, such as the agricultural supplies board.

In the special category $1,500,000 was provided for the St. Mary's river dam project in southern Alberta which will provide irrigation for thousands of acres of land. The project now is underway.

The section was headed by $3,000,000 for prairie farm rehabilitation act work and for water storage in the prairie provinces.

Expansion of the agriculture department's science service and its experimental farms services were reflected in increased grants in both categories. A total of $3,479,630 was provided for science, up $249,069 from last year and $4,109,246 for experimental farms, a boost of $297,648.

The production services, taking in such activities as animal health, control of contagious diseases, grants to fairs and aid to plant productions, including a $31,000 grant to the Canadian seed growers' association, got $4,792,756. This compared with $4,232,760 in the present fiscal year.

The department's marketing service was granted $3,307,423 compared with $3,257,861 last year, including an item of $777,599 for subsidies for cold storage warehouses. The marketing service got $3,257,861 last year.

TRAFALGAR HOUSE MAY BECOME NATIONAL MEMORIAL—Abolition of the $20,000 annuity paid heirs of Lord Horatio Nelson by Britain likely will result in the sale of historic Trafalgar House (above) in Wiltshire, and it may become a national memorial. The 100-room mansion was purchased with $400,000, a state gift, in 1805. Telescope which Lord Nelson clapped to his blind eye at the battle of Trafalgar, treasured with one of the admiral's uniforms, may be presented to the nation when the annuity ceases.
